

From SEMNET, November 1998:

There was recently a posting on SEMNET regarding the successor of LISCOMP. The new program is called Mplus. We have just sent the User's Guide to the printer, and are happy to announce that Mplus will be available beginning Thursday next week, November 19. Mplus offers second-generation structural equation modeling. New information about Mplus and Mplus short courses will be available on our web page at www.StatModel.com by the beginning of next week.
